

Sir Peter Leitch's AT MT SMART STADIUM, HOME OF THE MIGHTY VODAFONE WARRIORS

setter

Too slippery for the Eels!

The Stacey Jones coached Holden Cup Under 20s beat Parramatta Eels 23-16 in a game that has propelled them into the Final!

Ifor me there is another match taking centre stage.

The Vodafone Junior Warriors Holden Cup Under 20s have made the grand final, and I will be there to cheer them on.

Sydney will be going crazy in the build-up to the final, and I better go on record and say I'd love the Bunnies to get home but they will be without Kiwi hooker Isaac Lukeand the Bulldogs will be without their captain, Michael Ennis, but it's the curtainraiser I'm really looking forward

I've been in Sydney all week, with the Dally M celebrations my first stop, on Monday night and what a fantastic night it was, and of course the NRL Grand Final lunch on Thursday which will be a ripper, not to mention trying to get along to some of both club's own pre-game events. The Footy Show will be going off, but if there is a better story than our Holden Cup team, I haven't heard it.

Il the talk is about the Dogs v the The boys needed a sideline conversion in the final act seemed over. Bunnies in the NRL grand final, but of their last regular season game -superbly kicked by But this Stacey Jones-coached side wouldn't give in. Mason Lino – to sneak an 18-18 draw and a place in the eight at eighth.

> But since then they have seen off the Roosters and Knights, which left them the weekend's encounter against the Eels - who had flogged them 50-24 in the opening round of the season, and then completed the double with a last-minute 22-19 win at Mt Smart - to book a place in the final.

Does it get any closer?

A sensational last-minute Tuimoala Lolohea try gave the Vodafone Junior Warriors a 29-26 qualifying final win over Parramatta to get them to the grand final.

It didn't seem possible with only three minutes to go. We had led 19-6 at halftime but somehow slumped to 26-19 down heading into the last 10.

Then with 77-minutes on the clock, our dreams of a second straight grand final and a fourth in five years

Sam Lisone, who had kept taking the side forward all day, played the ball for Kurt Robinson, who pierced the defence for his first try of the year. Talk about perfect timing.

Mason Lino converted and it was 26-25, but it still looked impossible with a minute to go.

But the Vodafone Junior Warriors can never be counted out and with seconds to go Lino went to the line, dummied and the ball came loose for Lolohea to pick up and carve his way through.

I have to confess I thought the video refs were going to rob us of glory and disallow what looked a good try to me, but after what seemed like a million replays the green light came up.

Hardly surprisingly, there was an emotional outpouring as the boys confirmed their place.

Now we face Brisbane and making our fifth Trans-Tasman trip in as many weeks. The job isn't done yet but there has been much to admire about the way Stacey and his boys have performed. I went to the airport to meet these boys, and you could not meet a better bunch, so humble yet so proud.

Back slaps and high fives came too early

Apparently, and I heard this from the mouths of some of the players involved, the antics of the Parramatta Eels contributed to the remarkable comeback win that sent our side into the grand final.

With minutes to go there were high fives all over the place among the Eels players, and plenty of pats on the back for a job well done.

To be fair, I think most of us would have agreed that they were home and hose, but watching them - and doubtless copping a bit of sledging too - fired our boys up and the Eels were left with egg on their faces.

Is there anything better than watching an Aussie come a cropper?

When the chips are down

The win over the Eels was all the more remarkable when you consider that Stacey Jones had been forced to make four line-up changes after originally naming the same side that earned the club victories in the first two play-offs - against the Roosters and Newcastle.

But he lost three of his established starting combination. Fullback Brad Abbey didn't recover from a hip pointer injury, winger Metia Lisati was ruled out after picking up a hamstring strain, and second rower Marata Niukore was left behind after a family bereavement.

So 17-year-old Ata Hingano went to stand-off, Paul Ulberg to the wing and Michael Ki to the second row. All that meant Tuimoala Lolohea had to move to fullback, Abbey's run of consecutive appearances has ended at 26. The team's top try-scorer had been the only squad member used in every game so far this season.

Some record!

The elimination win against the Eels was the 19th play-off in the Vodafone Junior Warriors' history. We remain the only club to make the finals in each of the competition's seven seasons, and our record reveals 14 wins so far, including two grand final victories.

Mason makes a milestone

Mason Lino needed 11 points to reach 200 in an NYC season for the first time - and he mowed it down with a try, four goals and a field goal against the Eels, for a personal haul of 13 points.

Now he needs another seven to hit 500 for his career. In his third and final NYC season he has become the second highest points-scorer in the competition's history. Well done young man, a superb achievement.

Milestone beckons

Be warned: This means war!

My weekend was almost ruined though on Sunday be the news that the Auckland Council wants the Vodafone Warriors out of Mt Smart and at North Harbour.

Well I have a message for Len Brown and his mates, and it is this. It is funny that when rugby needed millions to upgrade Eden Park for the World Cup, that was no problem. And there was money too when you wanted flash offices. There always seems to be cash when it suits.

But for rugby league it is the same old story. Whistle for it.

Well, we will not take this lying down. In fact, I regard it as a declaration of war.

There is something pretty dangerous about a Butcher with his back against the wall, and I know I can rely on league fans to make their voices heard - just as I can rely on them to get behind our boys on Sunday night. (See further along in this Newsletter to see how you can get involved).

If we cannot win the NRL I am more than happy to take out the Holden Cup, so go the mighty Vodafone Warriors Juniors. Make me, and my great friend and your coach, Stacey, proud.

Competition offers hope to offshore Kiwis

There's big games aplenty at this week's Got A Trade? NZRL National Youth Tournament in Rotorua.

The emphasis is on the two titles – under 15s and 17s, currently held by Akarana Falcons and Counties Manukau – but the competition provides another opportunity for NRL agents and scouts to uncover Kiwi talent.

And the sub-plot is that the NZRL will attempt to capture the hearts of its offshore talent before it is snapped up by Australia.

The NZ 18s face the Taurahere Kiwis, a side made up of NZ-eligible players from NSW. Most have come through the domestic age-groups, before signing with Australian clubs. But, in future, that may include more whose families have relocated or even players that have never lived in New Zealand, but claim Kiwi heritage.

"There are several layers to this," NZRL talent development manager Dean Watkins says. "Firstly, we want to reconnect with players who have transferred to Australia. It's a chance for early talent identification and to build their desire to wear the black jumper."

James Bell & Paul Ulberg.

Ken Maumalo celebrates the victory with a few screams of excitement!

The boys were all smiles on arriving home after their win. Well done guys!

The last of the boys to come through customs. One game to go, guys – this Sunday against the Broncos.

Paul Ulberg – still celebrating!

Out and about...

Well, on Monday, it was off to Sydney for Grand Final week, which started on Monday night with the NRL Dally M Awards, a black tie event and by invitation only (see opposite). Later in the week, it's the NR Grand Final luncheon with both teams in the final in attendance. Then on Saturday, I go to the Kangaroos reunion were former players who have played for their countries will mix and mingle. I get in as a former Kiwis manager, and it's a great day! Then the big one – this Sunday, the NRL Grand Final where our Holden Cup team will be playing the Broncos.

This is the Big One... Don't miss

STADIUM MARS

IT WOULD BE a rare Vodafone Warriors / Mt Smart supporter who isn't aware of the Auckland Council's attempts, through Regional Facilities Auckland (RFA), to move the Warriors to the North Shore. At the RFA's request we shifted some games to Eden Park during the 2014 season. The result is that Eden Park was not economical and more importantly lacked atmosphere. The NRL have told RFA in no uncertain terms that Eden Park did not work in the 2014 trial.

For two years, the RFA has been trying to force Vodafone Warriors out of Mt Smart by not keeping the maintenance and other factors up to scratch as required by the lease. RFA has breached the lease.

To tell us that we just have to go "20 minutes up the road to Albany" shows how little the RFA understands the subject. They plan to spend millions on relocating cricket and relocating speedway to Mt Smart, and have previously spent mega-millions on rugby union and a new Council head office, but still have the old fashioned view that rugby league is not real football. As you know Vodafone Warriors nowadays draws bigger crowds than the Auckland Blues.

So, what can we do?

Vodafone Warriors have a water-tight lease at Mt Smart until 2018, so we have some time, and a Council election, before 2018. So here's what you can do:

1: call your local councillor to get an assurance that they support our Warriors cause.

2: write to the CEO of Auckland Council, Stephen Town, and tell him your views on the subject.

3: write to Bill Wavish and Sir Peter Leitch c/o the Vodafone Warriors and express your views, which they can then pass on to the Council.

Sir Edmund Hillary win 13-try grand final fter extra time and a total of 13 tries between them, Sir Edmund Hillary Collegiate beat McAuley High School Royal 30-28 in the Auckland Rugby League Girls' Secondary School nine-aside grand final on Thursday.

In front of a large and very vocal crowd at Sir Edmund Hillary in Otara, the two sides put on a fantastic display of female rugby league, trading tries to finish regular time tied at 22-22.

At no point through the regulation 40 minutes did either side lead by more than eight points, with missed conversion attempts restricting them from breaking free on the scoreboard.

With five minutes remaining McAuley Royal, who entered two sides in this year's competition, looked destined for defeat but for a late try to impressive fullback, Jennifer Lumisio, who finished the day with a double.

Under current ARL College Rugby League rules a 10-minute period of extra time must be played out, and if a winner still can't be found a further period of golden point kicks in McAuley Royal struck first, with Deborah Solo scoring and Vivian Fuseetai adding the extras to establish a 28-22 lead with six minutes of overtime remaining.

But spurred on by their home crowd who met every run with a passionate roar, Sir Edmund Hillary rallied late with tries to Rosemarie Alesana and Pipiana Mapu to edge out 30-28 winners.

It is the first time in six years that Tamaki College or Auckland Girls' Grammar – who were both last- minute withdrawals from this year's competition – didn't hoist the trophy. Sir Edmund Hillary coach AJ Leaupepe said the triumph has been years in the making for his southern school.

"It is pretty cool because we have a lot of girls who have been playing since year nine, we have about three girls who are in their fifth year with the side, and this is the first time we have ever won anything," Leaupepe said.

"I thought we were done but we got in there and stuck to the grind.

"We always get heaps of people turn out to watch out games, more than the boys' games get. I think they like the hits and the action, they like to watch a good game."

Sir Edmund Hillary Collegiate 30 (Cowedine Peyroux, Rosemarie Alesana, Pipiana Mapu, Mariah Timu, Zaibedah Holland, Mele Maliepo, Mele Tautaina tries; Pipiana Mapu 1 goal)

McAuley High School Royal 28 (Jennifer Lumisio x2, Ainslie Tufuga, Vivian Fuseetai, Philomona Leuusio, Deborah Solo tries; Jelissa Leo 1 goal, Vivian Fuseetai 1 goal)

The greatest Warrior, Stacey Jones, gives back to the game he's already given so much

By John Deaker

e often hear it mentioned the need for professional sportspeople to "Give back to the game." Many people could strongly argue that by the time Stacey Jones had finished 12 years of "service" playing for the Warriors that he'd "given back" all he needed to the NZ Warriors and the New Zealand rugby league community through his work on the field. In 2014 Jones has proven in his first year coaching the Warriors Under 20 team that as a coach it's likely he'll give a lot more back to New Zealand rugby league in the years ahead.

Despite Jones's prior experience with the Point Chevalier Pirates and his involvement with the Warriors Youth system last year, 2014 was always going to be as much of a learning experience for "The Little General" as it would be for his young squad. Learning about what makes his players tick and their chances of pushing on to higher honours has been interesting for Jones to assess. Listening to him speak it comes as no surprise that the really great coaches like Wayne Bennett, who've been masters of developing young players have been recognised as much as great man-managers as they have been for their coaching expertise.

"I've got that many guys in this squad that aren't playing that are a lot more talented than some of the players we've got in this team," Jones says.

"But the players that we do have playing in this team have a strong work ethic. That means they possibly have a much better chance of making it than those other kids."

"The biggest thing is about getting the right balance – and giving them what they need to learn. And I've found out that it's not a lot (that I need to give)."

Jones has relished helping players in the team develop this year – and especially the last few months as they've put into action some of the changes that have taken a bit more time to get across. He believes many of the Toyota Cup squad could get an even better appreciation for what is required to "make it" at NRL level just by watching how the very best of the Warriors' NRL players prepare themselves.

"If I could get some of the boys to come in and watch Simon Mannering and what he does for a week they'd learn much more there than what they would training with us for a month."

The statistics suggest the majority of Jones's 2014

Despite Jones's prior experience with the Point Chevalier Pirates and his involvement with the Warriors Youth system last year, 2014 was always going to be as much of a learning experience for "The Little General" as it would be for his young squad. Learning about what makes his players tick squad won't make it to NRL level. Figures from the NRL in 2013 highlighted that 23 per cent, or one in four NYC players will make the NRL, but the figure drops to just one in 10 who have a career lasting eight games or more. Already some of Jones's original squad for 2014 has dropped by the way-side.

"Some of them we've just washed our hands of and they've sort of decided they won't turn up. But to me that suggests that they're not going to make it anyway."

An interesting element to the NRL's study regarding the development of players was that the Warriors and Brisbane teams that clash in this week's NYC final are 2 of the 3 clubs with the best strike-rate for nurturing their own NRL players since the NYC started in 2008. Along with the Tigers - the Broncos and the Warriors' NYC teams all produced 25 graduates through to NRL level from 2008 to 2013.

A win in the Grand Final would probably increase the percentage chance of Stacey Jones's class of 2014 pushing on to higher honours. Sadly, it's unlikely all their best players will remain with the Warriors due to Salary Cap restrictions and the value that New Zealand's best young talent have provided for Australian clubs over the years.

Just creating opportunities for his class of 2014 means that the legend of Stacey Jones will continue to grow at the Warriors' club. His lessons from having been through the Grand Final experience as a player will no doubt be valuable for his young team to get confidence from this week as they approach Sunday's big game. If he can lead his team to a Grand Final victory at the weekend it will also give the "Little General" the personal satisfaction of leading a team to a Grand Final victory – something that just eluded him as captain of the 2002 Warriors team.
